Seascape house by Pattersons

AFTER REVAMPING THE homestead on this Banks Peninsula, 4000-acre piece of land, architect Andrew Patterson turned his genius gaze to the edge of the property and a bay with killer views. The dwelling he designed from which to enjoy said vistas is this; a one-bedroomed studio that boasts a living roof, stunning stonework and a gorgeously neutral interior. Seascape, which is accessed by helicopter or four-wheel-drive vehicle, is simply the best piece of architecture we've seen in ages. And, it's available for holiday rentals so, budget allowing, we can all enjoy it for a day or two.
